Velasco, Patricia; Cancino, Herlinda. Los retos de la educación bilingüe en inglés y español en las escuelas públicas de Nueva York: objetivos, modelos y currículos

The challenges of bilingual education in English and Spanish in public schools of New York: Objectives, models and curricula – The first section of this article describes the conceptual differences between educational objectives, educational model (context and structures) and curriculum (units of study or sequential study guides). The second section analyses how these three concepts were put into practice in five bilingual elementary schools serving immigrant students in New York City. The educational objectives reflect the leadership and work expectations which the principal establishes within the school and with the community. The educational model is translated into a clear language allocation policy that is reached by consensus between the principal and the teachers. The curriculum adaptations reflect the context and culture of the students, but without neglecting the educational objectives.

The main objective of this paper is to provide an in-depth analysis of the profiles of young Spanish entrepreneurs, their rationale for undertaking ventures and the main obstacles in three specific sectors, health, beauty and sport. The authors have prepared a questionnaire that has been sent out to enterprising young people, based on the directory of the main associations of young businesspeople in Spain, in order to establish the profiles of young Spanish entrepreneurs in these three sectors, their main motivations and the obstacles encountered when undertaking ventures. This will enable us to provide more information on this important group.
